

NEVADA TROPHY

The Nevada Trophy is composite medal containing four joined medallions suspended by a ribbon from a top piece which represents the upper hemisphere of a globe surmounted by an eagle. The entire assembly is about 3 3/4 inches wide by 7 1/2 inches in height. In 1962, the trophy was laminated in a plastic block and mounted on a wooden base. The trophy is gold and silver and was given by the citizens of the State of Nevada at a cost of $500 in 1875 to the "Army and Naval Journal" to be offered for rifle competition. From 1875 to 1894 it was used in Regular Army competition of Company and Battery level. The trophy was revived through the courtesy of Colonel William Church in 1909 at the Sea Girt, NJ, matches and was used as the award for an individual long range match until 1928 when it was withdrawn from competition. Custody of the Nevada Trophy was turned over to the NRA by GEN W.S. Price, President of the New Jersey State Rifle Association in 1954.
